

SUB FIRES POLARIS.

Polaris, the missile that's fired from under water, wonder-weapon of even this miracle age. Atomic submarine Washington put to sea with two Polaris aboard, ready for firing test.

The Washington is equipped to carry 16 missiles. Now her crew are about to make naval history; all set for the dramatic count-down, fifty feet below surface. And there she goes:

Success at the first attempt. In real war the submarine could fire all the sixteen she would have aboard, inside fifteen minutes. And up comes the second one.

Both missiles hit targets eleven-hundred miles away. Congratulations were sent on behalf of the whole nation by President Eisenhower.
