

2-205P01
60/62.

SCRAP CAR, BUY PLANE.

The biggest-ever traffic jams is a thing we're always talking about, and then along comes a bigger one. With cars that can do 100 miles an hour we've motored ourselves to a standstill. The light airplane seems the only way out. You can buy one and trade in your car, part-exchange. That's the proposition of one of the biggest car dealers in London.

Car salesmen will have to learn a new line of patter - which shouldn't be hard for them, and this model seems to have everything, air, including dual control,. In the rest, room for two more passengers and seat-belts for all, just like an airliner. For a reasonable fee the purchaser is taught to fly.

Two things to beware of when flying; don't run out of petrol and watch out for those lady-pilots.

Pilots can laugh at the chaos below. That is, till the air gets jammed, and the roads are clear. Then, you buy a car again!