BELGIUM LIKES ROYAL ROMANCE.

As one man the half million people of Liege acclaimed Dona Fabiola and King Baudouin. It was the city's first opportunity to express its pleasure in the royal romance.

Quite informally the King and his fiancée met the people. Before his engagement Baudouin had always seemed a little aloof, as though his royal duties weighed on him too heavily. That's all gone, and nowadays, as he should be, he's a very happy man. The wedding is planned for mid-December.

It is reported that in Brussels, disappointments over the Congo has lessened the King's popularity. In Liege he and Dona Fabiola had the reception of a lifetime.
