

JAPS IN INDIA.

Amongst those who welcomed Crown Prince Akihito of Japan and his Princess, Michiko, to New Delhi were children of resident Japanese Officials and business men. The occasion was the start of a ten day State Visit and as the couple left their aircraft they were greeted by President Prasad. The days of hostilities between the two countries are now in the past, and the Royal visitors were given a warm welcome.

Indian Premier Nehru joined Akihito and Prasad before the party left for the ceremonial State Drive to the Secretariat Building.

President Prasad drove with Prince Akihito. Prime Minister Nehru with the Princess.

The Secretariat Building was the scene of cordial exchanges between the visitors and their hosts who, between them are building strong Asian ties.
