BESSIE BRADDOCK TALKS TURKEY.

No arguing with a sight like this; Christmas....Naturally the emphasis was on turkeys at the National Poultry Show. There was a competition for breeders of the biggest birds, and there to present the trophy - Bessie Braddock. It was soon obvious that all previous records were being beaten. Bessie could see that for turkeys, it's been a good year. Though small families today don't want enormous birds, there are always hotels and restaurants, demanding the biggest and best. 50 lbs, 8 oss, was the weight of the winning gobbler, for which Roy Benton won the cup.

The Bentons (hailing from Thetford, Norfolk) do their best to see that folks will get plenty of the best on the 25th.
