

AIR TERMINAL INAUGURATED.

Orly can now claim to be the handsomest, as well as biggest, airport in Europe. Its $8-million air terminal building was inaugurated by President De Gaulle, a great occasion for him and the whole French nation. Orly expects three million passengers this year.

The designers have planned for eight million a year, 200 planes every 24 hours, and 8,000 people coming and going every busy day. Being French, the new Orly combines use and beauty. There's also the Great Southern Road, a new highway, taking passengers to and from central Paris in half-an-hour. London Airport, your move next.
