

BABY PRINCE HAS VISITORS IN TOKYO

These Japanese babies are arriving at the Royal Household for a reception being given by Prince Hiro with the aid of his mother the Crown Princess. After all, he's just past his first birthday and it's time for him to meet with others of his age. His guests today are all winners in a health contest and all were born in February of last year, as was the Prince. The Prince, destined to ascend the throne as Emperor is wide-eyed at this first exposure to playmates who some day may be his subjects. They're glad to bump into their royal playmate. It's a foretaste of more formal royal receptions to come.
