

STUDENTS HAVE FLING.

It was chaos on the campus; Commemoration Day at Sydney University; the students in full command. Item One on the programme, the Inter Faculty Flour Bomb Battle.

The Battle always goes over big. This year it got an extra boost when one side got hold of the fire hose. And to let as many as possible get the benefit, they didn't keep it all to themselves; they let passing cars have a plastering.

The time honoured custom of the Varsity Rag was invented in Britain. How nice to see our free institutions taking on overseas, and going with a swing that would do credit to Edinburgh or Glasgow.

Our Sydney cameraman didn't tell us who tidied up when it was all over.
