

STOKE MANDEVILLE GAMES

Nowadays, the word "disabled" is a very relative term - as the British Sports Association for the Disabled set out to prove with their first Sports Week at Stoke Mandeville Hospital. And the first day's taken over by the British Limbless Ex-Service-men's Association. Watching these tough sportsmen in action, it's hard to believe that every one of them is minus at least one limb.

Minister of Health Enoch Powell is an interested Spectator at the basketball game.

Most of us would need all four limbs to keep up with this lot. Maybe it's time to change that word "Disabled" - they deserve something more positive.
