SPORTS IN AMERICA.

After Rock-'n'-Roll comes Slip-'n'-Slide, all the rage this summer in California. It's a sheet of polyethylene, with running water built in; a way to get cool where there's no place to swim.

Why's she crying? Because she didn't get on, or because she did?

Shades of ancient Rome. The chariot race was top item at San Jose Rodeo.

Something not on the programme; power-unit and body part company and the driver bites his own dust.

The rest of the Rodeo was the usual thing, the cowpokes volunteering for a foretaste of nuclear war.

One rider made up his mind to stay put till the animals gave up. An idea right over the bull's head.
