PEASANTS REVOLT

Farmers are up in arms, from one end of France to the other. Tempers ran high in Morlaix, Brittany, where two farm-Union leaders were gaoled and tried for disturbing the peace. Their release was demanded in no uncertain terms. And released they were - very much the heroes of the hour.

In Pau, down south, an attempt by Minister for Industry Jeanneney to placate the farmers landed him into a bit of trouble. They say they'll continue the fight till they get better prices and make a profit again.
