

CARAVANS ON SHOW.

It was the world on wheels at the Earls Court Caravan Exhibition. The Fairview Danube (yours for Eleven-65 pounds) shows how you can live in luxury when you hit the open road.

Whether Lord Boothby pines for the nomadic life he didn't say, but for those who do, roughing it is a thing of the past. Built in two sections, for easier transportation, is Sun Cottage. More than a mere caravan, it's a transportable bungalow. So whenever you feel like a change of scene, or get a little tired of the neighbours, you can move on.

A recent importation, the Cheateau-Mobile; very light, quickly assembled, plenty of room.

Even simpler is the top-of-the-car tent.

The 2-berth Motent sells for £158. The makers say that when you get the knack, it can be put up in 13 seconds.

Back to luxury with the Golden Arrow, biggest double decker in the country. About a quarter-million people live in caravans in Britain, nearly four-million go for caravan holidays. With its eye on the export market, is the Golden Arrow's sundeck. In foreign sales, the caravan industry earns well over a million pounds a year.
