

CURLING FOR CHAMPIONS.

62/7

Mittenwald held a curling championship meeting for women. The game they play here has its own specially shaped stone, and it was soon clear that the competitors were no mean performers. That much was admitted even by men spectators. Wishful thinking, evidently isn't enough.

A good swig of the best fortifies her against the possibility of defeat. Curling is thought to have originated in Scotland; a fact which may have influenced the sort of refreshment that goes with it. Don't overdo it, Gretchen.

Like Switzerland, Bavaria has the advantage over Scotland that good ice is guaranteed every winter, so the players get plenty of practice. You too, mamma.

Younger generation coming along nicely.

What a woman.
