

THE ICE GRAND PRIX.

Who said motor racing's just a summer sport? Canadian enthusiasts cleared a 30-foot wide track on the ice round Lake St. Lawrence, near Ottawa, and held sports car races. Skids were the order of the day. They kept going, front ways, sideways, backwards, but always going.

What's the use of wheels, anyway?

Winter version of "Watch my dust".

The winner, in an oriental finish.
