

SCHOOL WITH 26 TWINS

Judy and Pat Bollington ... Peter and Philip Shaw. Everywhere you look at the Parks School in Belper you can see twins; some identical, some not. Surely there can't be another school anywhere in the country with such a proud record. There are 13 pairs of them altogether, though four of the twins were away when he took these pictures. There's no doubt about it, there must be something about Belper, or why all these twins? Is it the air, or the water, or talented parents? On the football field, twins could make up a whole eleven, with a couple of reserves. Keep away from Derbyshire, Benfica.

It's hot all play and no work. In class, the twins are hard at it, on the road that leads to the G.C.E.

Young folks about to marry: Would you like to live in Belper, or give it a wide berth?
