

NEWLYWEDS BEAT TAX

Jersey swarmed with honeymoon couples. 5,000 of them. Marrying before the Budget the new husbands save £31-five, and it's become a tradition that many of them go to Jersey. The Queen of the Channel Islands was a lovers' Paradise except for one lonely man. The sight of so much happiness goaded him into action. Surely, somewhere, there must be a lonely girl. And yes, there was; little suspecting that a romantic he-man lay in waiting, strategically, at a registry office. Two mind with but a single thought. In a trice they were lonely no more. The marriage pause was beaten again.

The Honeymoon Ball. In this and other hotels 5,000 minds with but a single thought.

So Mr. and Mrs. Lonely-No-More joined the happy throng.

It's ten o'clock now. Time to go up and turn on the news; a souvenir for each couple.

You know, these two have only known each other about 10 minutes. But in Jersey, ten minutes can work wonders.
