

AGA KHAN AT WORK

With some business associates the young Aga Khan spent a few crowded days in Sardinia. They looked over the beautiful Emerald Coast and decided to go ahead with a development programme. Karim was in a light hearted mood. He became Aga Khan on the death of his famous grand-father five years ago.

Land values in Sardinia have rocketed in the last year or two. Tourist experts believe the island will soon be one of the biggest holiday attractions in the Mediterranean, so business men wishing to cash in on the glowing prospect know they'll have to act quickly. The Aga Khan and his partners chose sites along Fox Bay. Building will start soon.
