ALL TOGETHER. FIRE!

On Salisbury Plain, a joint Services demonstration; Navy, Army and Airforce, (watched by Staff College personnel and Military Attaches), combined in the latest techniques of land air Warfare. Well named, the operation was called Noisy Nora.

The expert spectators then saw helicopters used for missile firing. If this is modern war, it's hot stuff for troops on the ground.

The next operation, named Saucy Sue, featured a flare, used as a marker, to guide a mass para-drop. It illustrated how a commando-force could be at a trouble spot, in good strength, in quick time.

Ghurkas were among the onlookers. They and all others watching were favourably impressed by the ability of the Services to go swiftly into combined action.
