CLINOCOPTER

about 100 m
Exclusive at this date

Helicopters have been doing very useful service in all fields. In particular as flying ambulances many lives could be saved by the rapid transport of seriously injured persons.

However, in numerous cases it was impossible to fly the dangerously injured person to hospital for treatment or if this was risked in some cases the operation came too late. For this reason the "clinocopter" was developed and was now demonstrated in public for the first time. -

The "Clinocopter unit" is in essence a helicopter which is adapted to transport a box containing a fully-equipped operating-theatre.

The box is deposited near the site of the accident or disaster. The injured receive on-the-spot-treatment, and are then flown in the helicopter to the nearest hospital for further care.

Our coverage includes:

1. Flight of helicopter from base to site of assignment
2. Injured are brought to the operating-theatre
3. Operation
4. Injured removed from theatre to helicopter
5. Departure for hospital
