

2-12-50
40/2

THE DAWN PATROL.

With the first reckonings of the sun war planes zoom into the sky. With Pilots of the South African Air Force at the Controls they'll have covered thousands of miles before the sun has set again. And their job is to guard the Coasts of the British Empire in Africa. No Nazi Ship ... No Nazi Plane... may approach... without these men knowing and jumping into the attack. It was one of these Coast Guard Planes that sighted the German liner Watussi off Cape Town..... and by dropping bombs round herforced her to change her course and sail towards Harbour. There she would have been interned, but as usual the Nazis preferred to scuttle. And another ten thousand tons of German shipping went west. Down there is Port Elizabeth.... the city is just waking up..... but already our Pilot is well into his working day, keeping watch along the Empire's shores.