U.S. PLANES FOR THE R.A.F.

A recent consignment of American Warplanes for service with the Royal Air Force arrives safely at a British Port.....The machines are for the moment without wings. They were removed to save valuable space in the ship and are stowed separately.

This and other shipments have safely crossed the Atlantic without interference from the enemy. No Nazi U.Boat challenged the important importation of this valuable war material... So much for the boasted German Blockade of Britain!

Within a few days of arrival these Lockheed Bombers are fully assembled, tested and flown. More strength for the Royal AirForce.
