H.M.S. HAWKINS DOWN AT RIO

After over a month at sea H.M.S. Hawkins puts into Rio de Janeiro. She now carries the flag of the Admiral who endeared himself to the British people by his conception and execution of the Graf Spee battle, Admiral Sir Henry Harwood. Admiral Harwood comes ashore with the British Ambassador at Rio. By the way, just before arriving here Hawkins caused one more Nazi ship to go the way of many others. Admiral Harwood ordered the German freighter Vacama to surrender, instead of which she scuttled herself and now H.M.S. Hawkins is off again to help bring the two ends of the war closer together. Good luck to her.
