

NEW SEAPLANE BASE.

America's Transatlantic Clipper is ready for the take-off, at the new Seaplane Base at New York's La Guardia Airport.

Thousands turn out to hear New York's Firey little Mayer la Guardia use words that might well apply to the German Airforce zooming over Scandinavia.

In the great Seaplane Hangar, two of the Transatlantic Clippers are open for public inspection. But the high spot of the afternoon comes with the first official Transatlantic flight, direct from New York to Europe. Carrying a record cargo. The Clipper taxis out for the take off. With the inauguration of its seaplane base, New York's la Guardia field takes its place as the largest commercial Air Port in the World.