The famous Toronto Scottish, to take over Guard Duty at Buckingham Palace and just at the moment they're learning how Learning how to Slow March just like the Guards, and you can see the Facing Stick to make sure they do it just right.

In fact they have Drill Sergeant M.C. Garrety of the Brigade of Guards to put them through it.

They're also learning the complicated ceremony of Changing the Guard, a sight that has been a jey to London visitors for as long as some of us can remember.

And you can be quite sure that when it comes to the turn of the Toronto Scottish, they won't let down the prestige of the Empire.

Another regiment that's slated for Guard Duty at Buckingham Palace, are the French Canadians. When they take over, it will be the first time in history that troops whose mother tongue is not English, will have mounted Guard at a Royal Palace. If the Drill Sergeant doesn't like the way they do it, he shows them himself. When he's finished with them,... the Guards will have nothing on the French Canadians.
