

40-37

2-3-70

WITH THE NAVY.

Back to port comes the 32,000 ton battle cruiser REPULSE, after months of patrol of the high seas.

And one of the first duties of REPULSE's Captain Spooner is to pay a courtesy visit to the Commander of the French Cruiser MONTCALM, also at anchor.

MONTCALM is commanded by Vice Admiral Derrien. So here is the Entente Cordiale in the faces of the French Host on the left.... and the British Visitor on the right.

Back to his ship goes the British Captain, and now Admiral returns the visit, and steps aboard REPULSE.

The French Admiral says goodbye, and returns to his ship. ~~ENDS HERE~~

And now into the smooth waters of the Harbour, comes H.M.S. COSSACK, one of the most famous destroyers of the Royal Navy.

It was COSSACK that went into Josing Fiord in Norway, and saved the British prisoners from the ALTMARK. It was COSSACK that took part in the Narvik Battle. It was COSSACK that has been in almost continuous action against the enemy in Northern waters.

And now she is home. H.M.S. COSSACK bears the scars of what she has been through. But after their rest, her men will be longing to get back into action .....That's the Royal Navy.