

OLD CONTEMPTIBLES MARCH AGAIN.

Once again they march through the streets of London...the men who have not forgotten. The salute at this year's parade is taken by London's Lord Mayor, Sir William Coxon... outside the Mansion House.

The Old Contemptibles have passed on the torch to a new generation... but they still stick together.

And they still march to the old tunes.

Into St. Paul's Cathedral for their annual service.

We too have not forgotten the men who began the struggle in Nineteen fourteen. We should be failing in our duty to them if we did not carry on, as they began.
