TIMBER FIRE IN DUBLIN

An acre of smouldering ruins, the acrid smell of burning lumber are all that's left of the big timber yard and packing case factory East Wall. Firemen are still at work in a wilderness of charred wood and twisted iron, heavy girders are bent into switchbacks with the intense heat. Before they could get the blaze under control, damage had been done to the extent of £70,000. but thanks to the good work of the firemen, part of the premises were saved.
