THE NAVY IN ACTION.

You are about to see some of the most amazing pictures.... ever thrown on to a newsreel screen. You are going to see the Navy in a great sea battle, before your eyes, the dark waters of the North Sea will be torn into whiteness by Mighty explosions. You will hear the roar of shot and shell and bomb. Men of the Navy are watching the sky, and the vast sweep of the sea. With them is a newsreel cameraman who a few days ago obtained permission to go to sea with units of the Home Fleet. With his camera, we take you into the tense dramatic atmosphere of the Navy moving to the attack.

At any moment in these dark waters.. we may find the enemy. At any moment in the skies we may meet the roar of the Nazi Air Force. the mists on the horizon may conceal Nazi Warships. From the decks of our aircraft carriers planes take off continuously.... to keep their unceasing patrol. Officers study their charts.... but mostly their eyes are on the water.... where at this moment Nazi submarines may be lurking.

Signal lights flash their messages from ship to ship. And how the Navy goes into action.

Nazi planes are approaching, anti aircraft guns raise their deadly heads. Range finders are on the marks.... ~~signal~~ signal lamps wink their orders¹ And here come the enemy bombers. Enemy bombs fall into the sea.

The Aircraft carrier is ringed with explosions. But not one of the enemy bombs finds its mark. For the moment the battle is over. With invincible grace the Navy rides on.

Let the people of Britain take heart from these pictures.

As long as we have the power at sea, as long as we are backed by the untold resources of a mighty empire.....As long as our War effort is wisely directed, no temporary setbacks, no sudden news of enemy gains.... can affect the final outcome of the struggle.
