

3-28-40
241

FLEET IN ACTION OFF NORWAY.

The Flare up of the war on the western front hasn't affected the strangle hold of the Royal Navy.... on the Northern Coast of Norway. Here once again are units of the fleet going into action... to bombard enemy positions.

And through the northern mist.... you can see our shells bursting. And now our destroyers speed to the rescue to an allied warship. The Polish destroyer GROM has been sunk by the Germans, and the smooth waters of the Fjord are specked with the heads of her seamen, as they swim to safety.

Over sixty Polish Seamen are rescued.... and others take their place among the heroes of the war. But those that remain.... will fight on.... in another Destroyer provided by the British Government.