AMATEUR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Doug Davis, contender, tees off in the final of the New South Wales Amateur title. Alan Walterson, the title holder is six down and he's up against it. It wouldn't look like it though after that drive. Straight down the alley as the fans follow Walterson's great fight he seems to have no chance. Davis putting, misses that one for a half. So the two lightweights carry on. Walterson snags one, lands near the green. Get out of the way son. Davis is in the bunker, but he's tiring now and chips onto the green. Walterson reaches the edge of the green now Walterson putting and he sinks a fourteen footer. Sensationally he's three up and three to go. As evening shadows fall, Walterson drives off in what's going to prove the decider. Davis is on the brink of defeat. Here a championship reclaimed. That puts good enough, half the hole. Sweetheart, you were grand. Yes Alan Walterson, you're a fighting champion.
