

PATHE GAZETTE: 40/49. (DUBLIN)

DEAF AND DUMB WEDDING

At Beverley Minster, said to have been built on the site of the Church of St. John, Patron Saint of the deaf and dumb, is solemnised the wedding of Mr. Duncan McKenzie and Miss Lester Holgate, both deaf and dumb show people, and is everybody happy? Their tragic handicap seems quite forgotten in the excitement of this novel occasion even the bride isn't as shy as some. The whole of the ceremony was performed in the deaf and dumb language, but the smiles of the principals are much more eloquent than words. In some respects the wedding doesn't differ from most others. So off they go to what we hope will be more than compensating happiness.