

Back in the war zone, we take you out in the North sea with Britain's Minesweepers. The cameraman who filmed these pictures was risking his life every moment of the time.... To show what it's like to be potting at mines, and blowing them sky high.

There's the mine... there are the bullets, ... licking round it. And up she goes. It makes a dramatic picture but it's a tough job for the men who are doing this day after day, and month after month.
