EVACUEES.

Even the Sheep have reason to be grateful to Britain's Government.
From the danger areas of the South East Coast they're going to safer pastures... and it sounds as if they're enjoying the trip.

The Farmers chief problem is to guard against separating the Ewes from their lambs. Every mother knows her own child... every child is unhappy without its mother.

That applies in the sheep world as well as anywhere else.

And so from the seashore marshes.... they come to the station...
and board the train for their lush green reception areas.

They're moving to new pastures.... and they're keeping Britain's food safe.
