

3-FH0800
40/52

NAVAL PARASHOTS

General Ironside, Commander in Chief Home Defence, inspects one of the local Coast Defence Units of his command.

And now, naval men prepare to deal with enemy parachutists.

One hardly associates Jack Tar with a rifle - but times are different, and now he's almost as much a soldier as a sailor.

The Marines too - undergo a spot of drill aboard... before going ashore to practice potting at the menace from the alies....

Look-outs are supposed to have seen some parachutists and the men jump to action. Its a way they have in the navy - - Give the 'Boys in Blue' a job to do... and its as good as done!