A PLUCKY WOMAN.

Presenting Mrs. Norman Cardwell, a farmers wife and first British woman to arrest a Nazi on British soil. A German raining plane was brought down by British fighters, and three of the crew jumped with parachutes. One landed near Mrs. Cardwell's house. She approached the Hun, and putting on her sternest expression, compelled him to put up both hands, (a change from the one handed Nazi, "Please Teacher" salute) and marched him to the custody of the Military. Mrs. Cardwell gets the O.B.E. for her pluck. She also gets the admiration of us all.

Another happy woman is the wife of Lt. Commander Bristowe, the hero of the RICHELIEU exploit, one of the most daring deeds in British Naval history. Penetrating the Boom Defences in a motor boat, he placed depth charges under the RICHELIEU and this put that most modern French battleship out of action.

By his daring, he helped to prevent the ship from falling into the enemy's hands.

We congratulate you Mrs. Bristowe, on your husband's magnificent exploit.
