GENERAL SIKORSKI HONOURS POLISH BRIGADE.

To the friendly fields of Scotland comes General Sikorski, Prime Minister and Commander in Chief of the Polish Forces in Britain.

Attaching the ribbon of the VIRTUTI MILITARI to the standard, he adds the highest honour of the Polish Army to the Colours of the Mountain Brigade in recognition of their gallantry at Narvik.

Officers and men stationed at this Training Camp are decorated for bravery in the Field. A Polish Woman Doctor and a nurse receive the Military Medal.

Of the original strength of the Brigade, only 35 per cent remain.

The places of those who fell in the campaign in Poland have been taken by miners and peasants from the plains,

Thousands of Poland's soldiers are ready to fight on. Their's is the spirit that can never be conquered.
