The London Fire Brigade proudly exhibit their latest fire fighting Appliance. Capable of travelling at nearly 60 miles an hour, this saloon type engine carries a crew of eleven men under cover. A neatly designed escape is rapidly detached and short portable ladders are compactly stowed behind the cabin. Hoses of all sorts and sizes can be rapidly attached and brought into play. A striking feature is the machine-gun-like monitor apparatus which is capable of projecting a formidable jet of water. Thus, firemen of today can go to blazes with the greatest of ease.
