THE QUINS ARE GROWING UP.

Not even the war can dim Canada's tourist attraction number one, the Dionne Quintuplets. The famous five are now six, and demure little ladies they are! Can you pick out Yvonne, Annette, Emelie, Cecile and Marie? They're just like peas inna pod, except that they are all little imps of mischief.

You'll remember, that even as a baby, one was more of a tomboy than the rest, and she still is! Yvonne (she of the funny legs and awinging arms) is sure she can take over the cameraman's job.

Her only difficulty is that she's can't film all five of the Quins, but she does a good job of work... (Taking ways, that kid)

Well, that's that. And as all good children must go to bed early, off they go. Thank goodness <sup>for</sup> these little mites. They help the world to forget its troubles for a while.

Goodnight children, Goodnight!
