TO FIGHT THE ITALIANS.

They left the South to fight in the East.

South African troops travel round their home continent to have a crack at the Italians. Until that pleasurable moment arrives, they take it easy. Some say "Good old Saage"! A visit to the barber who was once a sheep shearer! a game of cards and then another bit of shut-eye, just about completes the daily round, that is if the "blue pencil" bed stays put.

The warm welcome they receive on landing, is nothing to the warm reception they're going to give to Jerry's bell-boys. It's still Africa, whether its North, South, East or West, and the boys are there to stop anyone messing about with it.
