

LONDON'S FLOATING BUSES.

The London Transport Board are running a twenty minute river service on the Thames, between Westminster and Woolwich, to relieve Railway congestion. City Clerks and Typists can go to work now on vessels which took part in the Dunkirk Evacuation. And if you see any passengers with their hands up like little boys wanting to leave the room, they're only straphangers who can't get out of the habit.

Stand clear of the gangway..... and move right down the centre of the boat please. If anyone's seasick, he'll pay double.
