KING AND QUEEN AT COMMUNAL FEEDING CENTRE.

Minced beef and two veg; Spaghetti and Apple Charlotte - very tasty - very sweet. That's the opinion of some of London's homeless people who are visited by the King and Queen at one of the many communal feeding centres.... set up to cater for those who have lost practically everything except their courage and spirit.

After admiring the work of the Staff at this converted school at Peckham, Their Majesties talk with many of the mothers and children who get their meals at the busy kitchen - before they leave to see other feeding centres in this grand old Capital of ours.
