

HALF WAY TO AUSTRALIA.

A ship of good cheer reaches the Cape of Good Hope. The first batch of child evacuees on their way to Australia, break their journey at another great Dominion, South Africa.

The City of Cape Town organises a special sports day for the visitors. They skip their troubles away and give the blues the sack. Then South Africa sees how a real Scotsman plays Soccer.

The City Council treat their guests to a right royal feast of sweets, whilst Mrs. Smuts presents them all with books - pleasing mementos of a very enjoyable chapter in the trip. The children are feeling on top of the world. They're finding their place in the sun.

Finally, back in the docks, and goodbye Table Mountain...goodbye Cape Town and goodbye South Africa. It's been a grand visit but too short. This is a glorious adventure - a new life in a new world.
