U.S. NAVY TESTS TORPEDO BOAT

New hush-hush part of the American Navy are showing off their paces every day and one of the latest is a torpedo boat and looks anything but. Streamlined and fast, the new vessel is being tried out before she is taken over by her crew. Government officials crowd the bridge while the hush hush tries to show she's a big noise. Where there's a wheel there should be a way and that goes for the lever too. The torpedo boat stands up well to its test. She's a bright bounding girl with plenty of spirit well able to give a good account of herself should the occasion arise. When she's at speed not a fish can sleep.
