

242/900

REAL "SPORTS".

Veteran South African Footballers take the field at Blumfontein, to help swell the Governor General's War Fund. The "Old Crocks" turn out in skirts borrowed from their opponents, a team of women who wear the pants (as if we didn't know).

After a kick off by the Mayor of Blumfontein (wearing trousers) both sides break into the game with the zest of cup-tie finalists. Most of the girls are Free State Hockey Stars, and the men don't get things all their own way.

Throughout the battle of the sexes, the girls prove their superiority. A final goal makes the score four-two in their favour, and then, just to show they know how football should be played, they mob the referee.

A fine match - The pants beat the skirts after all.