SOUTH AFRICA'S COMMANDER IN CHIEF.

For many months now, South African Armoured Cars have been pointing their noses to the Equator. In a steady stream the Springboks are heading north. Now comes the news that up there among the troops is South Africa's Premier and Commander in Chief, General Smuts.

The General is a man of action. He's not a soldier who commands his army from an office at Headquarters, he goes out into the field... into the very front line, and gets to know his men. There's only one way to win a war, and that's for all to pull together. General Smuts is not sparing himself to see that his men and machines are A.I. We've seen that sign somewhere before.
