A WELCOME VISITOR.

Once upon a Christmas a very good man would come down the chimneys laden with toys.... but this year he walks among the ruins of many homes, the work of an evil being whom no one loves. Hello, there goes the "alert". You see, the kiddies have organised their own spotting system. Into action go window watchers, and chimney spotters - Santa Claus has arrived!!

Seen the whole district is alive with excited boys and girls. For twelve whole months they've been waiting for this, mind you, they began to wonder if he had had a bomb on his place, but here he is, the cold darling, and his toys aren't rationed. They knew dad and mum were wrong when they said there might be a Father Christmas this year. At last something to play with - the nights won't seem half so noisy now. Good old Santa Claus.

Coo Mum, now we can have a Christmas Tree with ~~kidg~~ lights on an everything (we mustn't forget the black out though) It'll be a nice Christmas if it doesn't raid!
