

5-29-80

4/1

TANKS... AND MORE TANKS.

Synthetic warfare at the indoor ~~gunnery~~ gunnery school of a training centre for tank crews. Skeleton gun turrets simplify instructions as the guns are sighted on miniature targets. Scale model landscapes accustom the gunners to range finding and sighting.

From the classrooms where plaster models help the embryonic marksmen, the crews pass to the more realistic training on the ranges. A big formation of tanks moves off over the brow of a hill spotting the mud and obstacles of a well beaten training ground.

From out of the cover of a fringe of trees they come, with guns opening up as gunners see their objectives in their gun sights.

A view from the top of a tank as tracer shells find their targets.

These are the heavily armed land cruisers of the battlefield. Swift and deadly, they are one of the most successful weapons of modern warfare...

And there's nothing more modern than this war.