THE PRIME MINISTER VISITS HIS OLD REGIMENT.

During a tour of the Eastern Counties, Mr. Churchill pays a visit to a Battalion of the Royal Scots Fusiliers, which he commanded in the last war. Drawn up for inspection are the sons of men who knew our Prime Minister as a fighting man of 1914 as he still is in 1941.

Once again among men of his old regiment, Britain's Prime Minister acknowledged the cheers of a proud battalion.
