U.S. TROOPS IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

An American Army Transport Ship across the Harbour from St. John's Newfoundland, acts as headquarters for American Troops established at this North Atlantic outpost. Its one of the eight bases leased to the U.S.A. from Britain, and every day ski-detachments and other forces come ashore for periods of intensive training.

In the Infantry, you've got to be prepared to "foot-slog", but the ski-troops fitted out with snow shoes, ski's, snow-camouflaged uniforms and what-have-you, slip around the country like a ghost army - America's Invisible Men.
