DUCHESS OF GLOUCESTER WITH WOMEN'S LAND ARMY.

A visit from the Duchess of Gloucester to Northamptonshire Institute of Agriculture, affords Her Royal Highness an opportunity of seeing land girls busily engaged in Wartime Food Production.

Training in all branches of farming is of a practical nature, and at the end of four or five weeks, most of the girls have not only given ~~weighty~~ weighty assistance to Britain's home front, but have added a few pounds to their own weight. A red letter day like this is greatly appreciated by the girls, who assemble in the Court Yard to listen to an address by the Duchess applauding them for the fine work they're doing.
